

Coming Out Monologues Application

In the first annual production of The Coming Out Monologues, a group of students, faculty, staff and community members are collaborating to present various aspects of the coming out process. We wish to include stories from numerous and unique backgrounds and perspectives, including coming out as an ally, as straight, from the perspective of parents and friends of people in the LGBT community, as well as members of the LGBT community itself. These are only some suggestions, and we are in no way limiting any submission or theme. Humorous, poignant, serious, embarrassing and creative: we want it all!

Disclaimer: We reserve the right to edit the submission for content and length. If you wish your submission to remain anonymous, we still require your name in order to edit and accept your work. You will not receive monetary compensation for your work. By submitting this form, you agree to the above conditions.
